

James Miller '70 was named the 2015 Entomological Society of America Fellow for his pioneering research in insect physiology, chemical ecology and behavior that has significantly enhanced insect detection and management. He is currently an entomology professor at Michigan State University.