

Millersville University

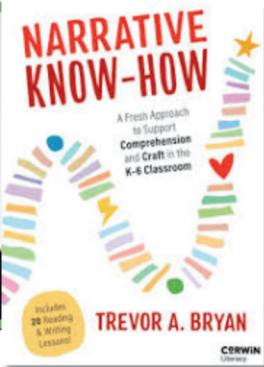

Summer Writing Institute

When Writing Workshop/Instructional Time Isn't Working

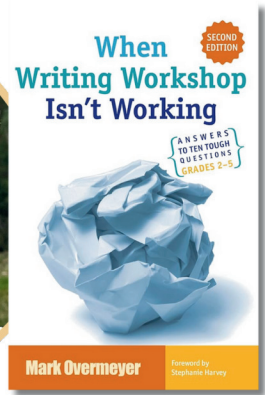

Our Speakers:

Felicia Rose Chavez
"Toward a Pedagogy of Deep Listening"

Trevor A. Bryan

Mark Overmeyer

Ideal For

Elementary classroom teachers (K-6), Middle School ELA teachers, High School English Teachers, Reading Specialists, Curriculum Coordinators, Reading Supervisors

Overview

Writing is such an important skill which can reinforce foundational literacy, critical thinking, and reading skills. This summer institute will focus on a plethora of ways to organize, plan, and implement writing time with your students. Our diverse array of speakers will focus on how to begin writing instruction, how to reach resistant writers, how to support students develop better vocabulary and word choice, how to help students write complete and more interesting sentences, how to help students organize their writing, how to navigate revisions and editing, how to manage writing conference, how to assess student writing, how to intentional use of technology (including AI) in the writing workshop, and how to plan for writing instruction. Enjoy engaging speakers, hands-on activities, and relevant assignments to help you incorporate the concepts covered during the course into your teaching (K-12).

June 22-26, 2026

8AM - 4 PM

in-person and virtual attendance options
available

Contact our Event Facilitator

Dr. Aileen Hower

Graduate Coordinator,
M.Ed. in Language and Literacy
aileen.hower@millersville.edu

For more information visit: www.millersville.edu/gsal/institutes