HISTORY AND PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT NEWSLETTER

Letter from the Chair

By Dr. Robyn Davis

Dear Friends,

We are living in an age of declining political and public support for higher education, of threats to democracy and the rule of law, of insidious attacks against the value of creativity, ingenuity, and the power and worth of the human mind. Yet in the face of those erosions, and like our predecessors for the past 170 years, the History and Philosophy faculty at Millersville are mentoring, teaching, and training spirited students and future educators. We relish the privilege.

And we know the value of sharing historical knowledge; indeed, in my note last year I told you that I had implored the PASSHE Board of Governors to impose a United States History class as a graduation requirement at all PASSHE schools! Regrettably, they haven't chosen to act on that recommendation. Frankly, I think a better understanding of our history – and the improved critical thinking skills that the study of history imparts is more urgently needed than ever.

Here on the hall, and as we work towards implementing the University's new Gateway Gen Ed program, the History and Philosophy faculty have been making explicit the connections that exist between what we teach in the classroom and what our students are able to do in the world. You – as historians and teachers of history – already appreciate the value of studying history and appreciate as well the ways in which it fosters the ability to think, to read, to write, to listen, and to look – and to do those things well. Now we'd love for you to tell us how your education in the History or Philosophy department at Millersville helped prepare you for your lives. Send your updates to HISTPHIL@millersville.edu

Of course, the one thing studying history teaches us is that things change (and as the philosopher Heraclitus observed, everything is in flux) – and the department is not immune to the inexorable laws of history. On June 1st, we became the Department of History and Philosophy when the two departments were merged and Drs. Jen Miller and Chuck Ward joined us. (Dr. John Kaiser-Ortiz has left Millersville and moved to New Orleans.)

The Philosophy B.A. has been put into moratorium – we are teaching out the last of the majors over the next few years – and we will continue to offer a Philosophy minor and a certificate in Ethics, along with our B.A. and M.A. in History, B.S.Ed. in Social Studies, along with minors in History and Military Science.

Faculty accomplishments, student successes, alumni achievements are on the pages that follow. Did we miss your news? Send your updates to HISTPHIL@millersville.edu

Connect with us on LinkedIn; follow us on Instagram; and have I mentioned? You should send your updates to HISTPHIL@millersville.edu

Warmest regards,
Dr. Davis

Special Events

The 40th Millersville University Conference on the Holocaust and Genocide

Millersville University's 40th Conference on the Holocaust and Genocide hosted three events during the 2024-2025 academic year. The theme of the conference was "The Children of Survivors of the Holocaust and Genocide: Remembrance and Reflection." The conference was organized by co-directors: Dr. Victoria Khiterer (History Department) and Mr. Barry Kornhauser (Office of Visual and Performing Arts) and by the members of the organizational committee:

Ms. Miriam Baumgartner (Jewish Community Alliance of Lancaster)

Dr. Sarah Brooks (Educational Foundations Department)

Dr. Kasia Jakubiak (English and World Languages Department)

Dr. Tanya Kevorkian (History Department)

Rabbi Jack Paskoff (Congregation Shaarai Shomayim)

Public Lecture and Teachers Workshop were held on September 30, 2024. Dr. Victoria Aarons (Trinity University) and Dr. Alan Berger (Florida Atlantic University) delivered a public lecture "We do not live in the past, but the past lives in us" (Elie Wiesel): Post-Holocaust Generations and the Extension of Holocaust Memory. Before the lecture, Dr. Aarons and Dr. Berger led a workshop on teaching about the Holocaust through literature and film.

Special Events

The 40th Millersville University Conference on the Holocaust and Genocide

The Alan & Linda Loss Keynote Lecture was held on April 1, 2025. The Loss Lecture The Commitments of the Son of a Survivor: How the Holocaust Has Shaped My Moral, Political and Spiritual Commitments was delivered by Yossi Klein Halevi, prominent author, journalist and son of a Holocaust survivor.

The film “Kaddish” screening was held by Millersville University on April 22, 2025. The event began with pre-screening panel discussion, where Dr. Jack Fischel, Dr. Victoria Khiterer, Dr. Jeff Mufson, Rabbi Jack Paskoff and Ms. Julia Fallows participated. The director of the film Steve Brand, who was present at the event, answered the questions of the audience after the film.

The film is about the psychological ramifications of history, the choice between viewing ourselves as perpetual victims or resilient survivors, and the search for a Post-Holocaust Judaism. It is the story of the stormy yet loving relationship between recovering Jewish activist Yossi Klein Halevi and his father Zoltan, who had survived the Holocaust’s devastation of Hungarian Jewry by hiding in a hole in the ground for six months. Meanwhile his parents perished at Auschwitz.

Supported by grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, “Kaddish” originally premiered at New Directors/New Films in 1984, went on to win a Special Jury Award in Documentary at Sundance, and made David Edelstein’s 1985 10 Best Films list in the Village Voice.

All three Holocaust conference events were well attended and received very complimentary feedback from the audience.

Department of Philosophy

The Department of Philosophy sponsored a field trip to the Philadelphia Museum of Art and the Rodin Museum on November 18. Students from Dr. Jen Miller's PHIL 383 Philosophy of Art & Aesthetics class were joined by other MU students for a day of art and conversation about art and philosophy.

The Department of Philosophy hosted a World Philosophy Day event in the Ford Atrium on November 21, 2024. World Philosophy Day was established by UNESCO in 2002. The UNESCO website for WPD includes this statement: By celebrating World Philosophy Day each year, on the third Thursday of November, UNESCO underlines the enduring value of philosophy for the development of human thought, for each culture and for each individual. At the MU 2024 WPD event, current students, alumni, current faculty and retired faculty gathered to collectively acknowledge the important role of philosophy for public higher education. A number of students and past faculty spoke at the event to highlight the value of philosophy and its history at MU.

The Department of History and Philosophy is planning another World Philosophy Day event for November 20, 2025.

Special Events

Annual Ethics & Society Symposium

The Department of Philosophy held its annual Ethics & Society Symposium on March 28, 2025. Current MU students, alumni and former faculty presented on various topics ranging from AI Ethics, Animal Rights, Treatment of Death Row Inmates, Immigrant Resettlement and more. A Symposium for Spring 2026 is in the planning stages.

McNeil Center for Early American Studies:

Sarah Gehret, BA '25 was accepted by McNeil Center for Early American Studies at the University of Pennsylvania for participation in the center's 16th annual Undergraduate Student Workshop. The workshop was open to students at institutions that are members of the McNeil Center's consortium; admission was competitive. The workshop convened twice this semester. First, students met for a February archive and library tour and were matched with graduate student mentors who worked with them this spring. Then in April, the students, their graduate and faculty mentors, and others convened for the Saturday workshop. The undergraduates each gave presentations based on their honors theses, and their graduate student mentors commented. Sarah had defended her departmental honors thesis, "'A Little Smattering, and a Few Words Recommendatory': The Limitations of Early Philadelphia Educational Institutes in Teaching Black Students," a few days earlier. The day before, students arrived, attended one of the McNeil Center's regular Friday seminars, had a conversation with the seminar presenter, Dr. Michael Blaakman of Princeton University, and stayed for a reception. Dr. Tanya Kevorkian, a professor in the history department, supervised Sarah's thesis and served as her mentor for the workshop.

Congratulations to
Our New Graduates!

David Trok, MA History, 2024, Social Studies Teacher.

My education from MU gave me a leg up in my job search to find a new teaching job in public education.

Ben Mitchell, MA History, 2019, Hempfield School District – Social Studies Teacher.

All of the courses in the program allow any student to explore many different perspectives on any one topic in history. All the courses also help to prepare students to become professional historians and truly appreciate the field.

Advice to students: My advice for Millersville University students is to rely on your professors and peers to make the most out of the experience!

Special memories: The members of my cohort were remarkable, and we had an absolute blast both in and outside of class. I am still in close contact with many of my colleagues, and more importantly, met my wife through the program! Of the three Masters programs I've completed, the History degree is the one I hold most dear.

Luann Cartwright, BA History, 2022, Central Dauphin School District –English Language Arts Teacher, 6th Grade.

As an English teacher, I use my History degree to interact with my students in many ways. We often read articles and short stories, even novels, that have some relation to history. Earning a BA taught me to think differently, planning more cohesively and with foresight.

Advice to students: My advice for Millersville University students is to thoroughly enjoy and take every advantage offered to you! Education is never a waste and any class you take will, in some way, make your life different. Whether it's your perspective or you use what you've been taught, it will benefit you!

Special memories: I had the most amazing, engaged, enthusiastic, helpful professors, I think it was memorable. I wish I could return to MU for a Master's Degree in History!

Chris McCumber, BA History, 2024, Villanova University – Paralegal Student (Attending Villanova's Paralegal Program)

Advice to students: My advice is to keep pushing! Don't be afraid to pursue your dreams! And to not be ashamed if you don't know all the answers to your future. I didn't enter college with law school in mind.

Special memories: I remember how fond I was of Dr. Shelor's Seminar class. When I was proofreading, I remember reading sentences that made no sense, and Dr. Shelor and I would laugh about how odd the human brain gets when it's "autopiloting."

The best way to describe what I do is help old people get on their zoom meetings. I work with anyone from the CEO to a sales director. We make it easier for departments to host town hall and utilize virtual technology and connect cross organization. Most of the time you will not actually use the knowledge you get from classes but it's the skills you use doing the work. That's what will make or break your career because you learn what you're good at and also can work on what you are not good at in a safe environment.

Samantha Gambino, BA History, 2022, Renewal by Anderson – Sales Support Coordinator.
I fulfill the needs and requests of the 60+ sales representatives and 4 sales managers that make up the sales team for RbA of the Greater Philadelphia Area.

Advice to students: Study hard and learn all you can even if it doesn't have to do with your degree!

Special memories: Taking Dr. Shelor's History of Medicine class right as the COVID-19 pandemic hit was fascinating and a good way of calming down in a time where most everything was scary and uncertain.

Jami Rhynes, MA History, 2024, County of Lancaster – Chief Deputy Recorder of Deeds.
Advice to students: Many people say they had a wasted degree because they weren't in a job that was related, or they didn't like the job they were in. However, if you had the motivation to earn a degree, you have the skill to get creative and make it work for you in ways you may not have foreseen.

Special memories: Earning my MA in the History Department was one of my life's joys. One special memory I have is of working on a project for Dr. Davis to present research topics in interesting ways. I so enjoyed that project that even now I intend to revisit it to insert ideas I have had since then to make it even better.
